

Divine Breakthroughs Oracle

1. Be-Do-Have - You are co-creating with God! Stay on your center and your vision is sure to manifest!

The Be-Do-Have approach to creating your goal means you come into alignment with how you want to feel before taking action. An example is when you are experiencing scarcity, and then consciously shift your vibration into feeling abundant. You “be” abundant, then “do” what an abundant person would do, and you will “have” an abundant outcome. This enlightened consciousness gives power to your Faith in God. Co-creating with God means to surrender the need to know or control how your vision will manifest. The journey feels magical and the action steps are delightful.

Write a list of qualities or ways of being that support you to move forward with your vision (ex: courageous, prosperous, trusting, joyful, peaceful, free, expansive). Create a personal mantra around your goal and say it outloud everyday. For example, “I am focused, powerful, and expansive.”

2. Body Threshold - Where have you said “yes” when there is a “no” inside? Physical challenges indicate a leak.

The body threshold manifests as sickness, illness, or tiredness when we give our energy to people, experiences, or things that aren't fully aligned with us. When you are afraid to “rock the boat” and say no, you trade your energetic integrity for your attachment to being perceived a certain way. Saying yes when you feel a no is also a way to avoid another's reactions you might be afraid of. In an attempt to control another's perception or reaction, you leak your energy and become vulnerable to illness or tiredness. You can also leak energy to your inner critic. For example, if you know you need to rest and your inner critic is using “should” thoughts to get you to do something besides taking care of yourself, you drain yourself and can become sick. The way to break through the emotional threshold is through upholding healthy boundaries and self-care. Learn to say no.

What people, activities, or tasks are you giving your “yes” to when there is a “no” inside? What is the worst thing that can happen if you were to say no? What could you do with the time and energy freed up by saying no to experiences that don’t align with you?

3. Bubble Meditation - Torn between choices? Imagine each choice in different bubbles. Which one brings the most joy?

If you find yourself feeling torn between multiple choices, find a quiet place to center yourself and close your eyes. Imagine the first choice in its highest fruition in one bubble. Step into that bubble and gauge the level of joy you feel on a scale of 1-100. Step out of that bubble and take a deep breath to release that energy. Now, imagine the second choice in another bubble. Step into that bubble and gauge your level of joy from 1-100. Repeat this process with the next bubble of choice, if any. Which bubble gave you the highest joy? Suspend the logical reasons that attracted you to the other options, and trust the highest vibration. The option that gauges the highest joy gives you more abundance than the other choices.

4. Clear Intention - Focus on the result. The manifestation of your goal does not rely on any particular action or resource.

To be in clear intention means no particular action step has the power to make or break your experience of bringing your goal into fruition. When you are in clear intention, you are co-creating with God and manifesting from a Be-Do-Have consciousness. You are not stopped by blocks or limitations because for you, they do not exist. Obstacles are merely recalibrations. Your consciousness is in the result, so no matter what action you take, you make whatever adjustments needed to align with your highest outcome.

Write down what your perfect result would look and feel like. After describing all of the wonderful details, write, “this or something better.” Throughout your day, revisit your vision and say, “I’m not sure how, all I know is I am co-creating my vision with God, and the most benevolent outcome is mine to experience.”◦ Lighthouse - Keep the Light of your Faith shining brightly for God. Ships of your supply are sailing to you now.

5. Demonstrate Faith - Necessary action steps may risk the loss of time, money, or image. It’s time to be bold.

A demonstration of Faith is a practical action step you know you need to take, and you can take right now, but may risk you something. You may never get the time or money you invest back, and you might also look bad if you fail. When you demonstrate Faith, you are putting skin in the game. You are demonstrating your Faith in God by taking a powerful leap toward your goal with no proof anything will work out in your favor. Demonstrating Faith speeds up the threshold process and communicates to the Universe that you are ready for magic.

What is one action step you can take toward your vision right now that feels risky? What would you need to invest with no guarantee you will ever get back a return? Are you willing to take that step now?

6. Do-Have-Be - You are co-creating with your mind. You will burn yourself out by over-doing. Relax and trust God.

The Do-Have-Be approach to creating your goal means you think you need to do something to make your goal happen. An example is if you tell yourself you need to “do” more work to “have” more money to “be” happy. This consciousness of force gives power to the limitations of your mind. You manipulate your goal into fruition by expending your own limited energy, resources, and intelligence to make your goal happen. Sure, you can “make it happen” and stress, anxiety, and burn-out are byproducts of acting as if it is only up to you to make your vision a reality. When you create your goal from a Do-Have-Be consciousness, it is your job to figure out the “how-to” since you have cut God out of the co-creative process.

Where have you been forcing yourself to “make it happen” and now your vision feels stressful or burdening? Take some time to rest and rejuvenate today. Connect with a friend, take a bubble bath, or do something recreational to fill your cup.

7. Don't Postpone - Divine Timing will align when you give everything you can toward your goal now.

Overcoming procrastination is key to align with Divine Timing. Even taking one small step a day toward your goal, your practical actions stir up energy for the Universe to respond. The right people, inspired ideas, and resources move at the speed you are moving, and they postpone when you postpone. Don't wait any longer to move forward on your heart's desire. Take action now.

Write a list of actions you know are necessary to bring your vision into fruition. Even if there may be a hundred steps, and you are currently only aware of five, write them down. Take action on one of those steps now.

8. Embrace Self Love - Offer God the gift of your own self-love. Self Love awakens God from within you.

Any person or religion that has told you that you are unworthy of God's love has lied to you. Self-love is the magnetic power that draws Heaven on Earth to you. God loves you unconditionally, so who are you to not love yourself? Do you know better than God? Self-love is not pompous or egotistical, but the opposite. When you learn to love yourself without conditions the way God loves you, you are glorifying God in the highest way possible.

Take one minute everyday to look into the mirror and say, "I love you." Notice how you feel. Do you feel honest or pretending when you say "I love you" to yourself? Continue to share what you love and appreciate about yourself in the mirror. Refuse to say, "yeah, but..." or anything negative or critical about yourself.

9. Emotional Threshold - What button-pushing battlefield is seducing you? Stop, and stay focused on your vision.

The emotional threshold appears when you allow dramas or emotional entanglements to distract you from your goals. The need to be right, save face, or defend yourself are all seductive ways you come off your center and enter a button-pushing battle field with another. Suppressing or over-dramatizing grief can be another way the emotional threshold surfaces. When you enter any kind of drama, your energy becomes passionate, fiery, and frazzled. The way to break through the emotional threshold is to disengage from drama immediately, and stay focused on your goal.

Write down the relationships in your life that trigger you. What topics easily trigger you? For example, if you find someone challenging your political or religious views, do you engage in those conversations with an attachment to being right? Are you a rescuer or hero who finds yourself running to defend those in trouble?

10. External Threshold - Where are you letting time, money, or others get between you and your heart desire?

The external threshold manifests when we believe something outside of ourselves has the power to stop us from achieving our goal. The most common external thresholds are time, money, or others. For example, if you believe you don't have the money you need to fulfill your goal, you will manifest a financial breakdown (Ex: car breaking down, unexpected bill, emergency of some sort). The external threshold reveals where you sell out on yourself and give up. Because you believe money has the power to come between you and what you want, you will manifest a financial breakdown until you change your belief system around money. The way to break through the external threshold is to decide that your perceived obstacle does not have authority over your life, and open yourself up to a win/win. You must let go of your "either or" consciousness and know that God is here to support you in handling your life responsibly and manifesting your heavenly vision.

What external thresholds do you give your power away to? Do you believe you don't have time for your vision? Do you believe another such as your boss, children, partner, or family member you are taking care of is in the way of your vision? Is the lack of money your repetitive story? What belief systems do you need to change to handle your life responsibly while manifesting your vision?

11. Focus - What you focus on will manifest. Don't give power to obstacles. Only focus on what you want.

Do you know how powerful your focus is? If you focus on beauty, you see more beauty. If you focus on what you think is wrong, you will see more of what you don't want. When co-creating with God, it is crucial to focus on what you want, and not on what you currently believe are obstacles.

Take five minutes to close your eyes, take a deep breath, and daydream about what your heart desires more than anything. If you find your mind wandering to obstacles or blocks to your heavenly vision, simply return your focus back to what you want.

Want a bigger challenge to strengthen your focus?

Bring to mind someone or something that is not your preference and triggers you. Now, say out loud all the good qualities of this person or thing. Notice if your mind wants to yank your focus to what you believe is wrong or lacking about this person or thing. Bring your focus back to what is good and speak those qualities outloud for five minutes.

12. Forgiveness - Forgive yourself and others for all harm that has been done. It does not serve you to live in the past.

Carrying burdens of the past can cause the threshold experience to be heavier and more painful than necessary. When you are willing to forgive yourself and others, you free up mental and emotional energy to create your vision. If you find yourself challenged in forgiving the past, call on God and your Guidance for support. Pray, "thank you, God, for forgiving through me. I welcome you into my heart to do this healing work, and I free, forgive, and release the past through the power of your love."

What people or experiences cause your heart pain when you reflect on them? Where have you not forgiven yourself for past mistakes? Bring those (including yourself) you have not forgiven fully and say out loud, "I free, forgive, and release the past, and I open myself to uncommon joy now and in the future."

13. Fork in the road - You are presented with two paths. One is safe, the other trusts in God. Are you a sheep or a Shepherd?

When we declare we want to change in a positive way, the Universe will present an opportunity to decide if you are ready to embrace the change you declared or remain the same. This fork in the road gives you the opportunity to remain a sheep and stay the same, or to become a Shepard and expand into your greater Self. The sheep gets to remain comfortable, and exchanges their energy for the illusion of security. The sheep experiences no magic. The Shepherd walks a path of Faith with no guarantee anything will work out in their favor. The path of the Shepherd is where all the magic lies.

Write down the pros and cons for each side of the fork in the road. Distinguish which path is the sheep that will keep your consciousness the same, and which path is the Shepherd that will cause you to grow in uncomfortable, but rewardable ways. Which path do you choose?

14. Have-Do-Be - You are co-creating with obstacles. You don't need something external to change before taking action.

The Have-Do-Be approach to creating your goal means you need something outside of yourself to change before taking action. An example is if you tell yourself you need to "have" a certain amount of money to "do" the thing you want to do to "be" happy. This victim consciousness gives power to the obstacles. You don't bother taking action because you don't think you have what you need to get started. You blame your perceived obstacles as being the reason why you take no responsibility toward your goal.

What obstacles are you letting get in the way of you achieving your goal? If these perceived obstacles didn't exist, what action steps would you take today? Pick any action step that moves you towards your heart desire and do it now.

15. Heart Desire - God never places a desire in your heart without the resources to follow through. What do you want?

God communicates to you through your heart, therefore, every desire in your heart was placed there by God. God would never ignite your heart with a joyful vision without all the resources you would need to manifest that vision. You may not currently see or know where those resources are, but God does. As you co-create your vision with God ignited by the power of your unwavering Faith, the resources reveal in magical, unpredictable ways as you need them.

What do you want? If you could have anything manifest in our beautiful material world, what would it be? Take some time to journal about what your personal Heaven on Earth looks like.

16. Gasoline Friends - Don't share dramas with friends who stoke your dark fire. Seek guidance from neutral friends.

There are people in your life who love an opportunity to engage in drama. They may care about you, and their way of showing their care is by defending you and adding gasoline to the fire (aka drama). The more you lean on gasoline friends when you feel wronged in some way, the longer it may take for you to come into self-realization about why you have attracted the drama to you in the first place. Be conscious about sharing your troubles with those who add fuel to your disturbance. Instead, call on a neutral friend, counselor, or coach who can support you to take responsibility for your experience.

Write a list of your gasoline friends and a list of your neutral friends or resources. Which friends support you to be fully responsible for the reality you created?

17. Gratitude - Say "Thank you" for prayers that have been answered verses stressing out about the ones still on their way.

Gratitude is arguably one of the most powerful energies in the Universe. If you find yourself coming to God with your honey-do-list and pray when you feel stressed or need something from God, try starting your prayers with gratitude instead. Say out loud what you are grateful for until you tap into the blissful feelings of genuine gratitude. You may find yourself forgetting the problem you came to God with in the first place.

Every night before you sleep, write down five things you are grateful for. Then write five things you are grateful about yourself. Practice this with a friend or partner.

18. God is my Source - Bless all known and unknown ways through which God gives. All abundance is from God.

Understanding "God is our Source" is not a concept, but a way of life meant to be consciously practiced and developed. For example, if you were to lose your job, would your level of faith waver that prosperity will continue to flow? Or would you stay grounded and celebrate the loss of your job because you trust God has another avenue of prosperity coming your way?

Write down a list of people, things, or experiences that you are attached to and have unconsciously made your Source. What people have you decided are the Source to feeling loved, secure, protected, etc? Meaning, if those people were to unexpectedly transition, you would feel lost without them. What things or experiences (like a car, home, or job) have you unconsciously made your Source to feeling safe and secure? If you were to lose those things, your peace of mind would be disturbed. Write and affirm out loud, “God loves me through the wonderful vessel of (person, thing, experience). God is my Source to all I experience.”

19. God’s Job - God’s Job is the “How To.” Your job is to focus, have faith, and take practical and inspired action.

When you co-create with obstacles (Have-Do-Be) or with your mind (Do-Have-Be), figuring out the “How To” for your goal to come into fruition is your job. When you co-create with God (Be-Do-Have), it is God’s Job to figure out the “How To.” Your job becomes much simpler, though mastering your job may not be easy. Your job is to focus on what you want, have unwavering Faith it will manifest, and take practical and inspired action. Surrender the need to know or control how everything will work out for you. Let God figure out how all of the miraculous pieces will come together.

When you find yourself worrying about the “how to” in manifesting your vision, shift your focus back to your job, which is three simple steps:

1. Focus on what you want
2. Have unwavering Faith it will manifest
3. Take Practical and Inspired Action

20. Guidance - Call your Heavenly Team, and let them support you the way a true best friend would on Earth.

Your Guidance (personal angels) are your best friends in the spiritual realms and love you unconditionally. They helped you create your purpose before you took birth, and they will celebrate you when you transition into the Light after this human embodiment. They are always with you and have a bird's-eye view of your life. They respect your freewill and will never impose their will upon you. When you ask your Guidance for help, they will assist you in the most magical ways. They guide you through intuition, synchronicities, and messages that help point you in the right direction.

If you have not consciously worked with your Guidance yet, close your eyes and ask to feel all of your own energy. Then take a deep, cleansing breath and then ask to feel the energy of your Guidance. Notice the difference? Start communicating with your Guidance now, even if it feels awkward or contrived. The more you consciously develop the relationship with your Guidance, the easier it will be to receive their loving messages.

21. Inner Critic - The voice in your mind that says abusive criticism isn't your friend and cannot be trusted.

Your inner critic is your biggest manipulator and enemy. It will use logic as a weapon against you and tell you all the reasons why you can't accomplish your goal because you need more education, money, support, etc. This voice paralyzes you from taking action, and the more you listen to your inner critic, the stronger it becomes. Stop treating this inner, limiting voice as your coach and letting it guide you into obstacle confusion. If your mind is sharing logical thoughts that cause you to feel heavy and doubt yourself, it is your inner critic talking. Tell that unhelpful, sabotaging part of your mind to buzz off.

When you recognize your inner critic speaking, assert yourself to that part of your mind. You can say, "that's not true," or "buzz off." The more you practice calling out your inner critic, the less power it will have over you.

22. Inspired Action - God reveals action steps through inspiration. Trust the magical doorways you did not plan.

When we delight in taking practical action (the obvious action steps we know we need to take), we show God we are serious about our goal. Inspired action is God's way of delegating to you. God will inspire you with thoughts, conversations, and opportunities you did not plan, and it is up to you to say "yes" and walk through those magical doorways. Practical action is like picking up a baseball bat and walking to the plate when it's your turn to swing. Inspired action is swinging when God pitches the ball.

Take a moment to reflect on an extraordinary goal you have already accomplished and were amazed at how that goal came into fruition. What special occurrences happened for you to reach that goal? What action steps revealed that were not predictable?

23. Intuition - Trust yourself. You are being Divinely guided and everything will work out for you.

It is better to trust your intuition and be wrong than to not trust your intuition and be right. Your intuition is your energy compass that reveals the truth behind the veil of the material world. The more you trust your inner compass, the easier you will navigate the many wonderful challenges, trials, and tribulations your path has to offer. Develop your gift of intuition. Everyone has intuition, and the gift must be exercised and developed like any other for potency and accuracy.

Journal about the times in your life when you ignored your intuition. What unfolded for you when you didn't trust yourself? Now journal about times where you trusted your intuition. What happened? How did honoring your intuition add to convenience and breakthrough? Keep a daily journal about the times in your day when you honored or ignored your intuition.

24. Leaking Energy - You lose power by giving energy to experiences that don't match you. Learn to say no.

Imagine yourself like a battery that has a certain amount of energy. The experiences you have during the day either recharge or drain your battery. When you engage in activities or relationships that are not fulfilling, you leak energy. Thinking negative thought patterns and dwelling on the past also leaks energy. Getting into fights or dramas with others leaks energy. You can recharge your energy through proper rest, meditation, healthy food, and engaging in healthy relationships and activities that inspire you. Learn to say no to experiences or people who drain you.

Write a list of people, activities, and thought patterns that leak your energy. Which ones are you willing to release from your life now?

25. Lighthouse - Keep the Light of your Faith shining brightly for God. Ships of your supply are sailing to you now.

Imagine God as a vast ocean, full of every wonderful resource to fulfill your heart's desire. You ask God for what you want, and God happily loads ships with the supply of your heart's desire. The ships sail to you. You are the lighthouse, and Faith is your Light. Moments of doubting God or yourself is like a flickering lighthouse seen from the ocean. If doubt replaces faith, and your light goes out completely, how will the ships of your supply know where to land?

Take an honest inventory of your Faith. On a scale of one to ten (one being doubting completely and ten being unwavering Faith), where are you on that scale? What is one daily habit you are willing to do to strengthen your Faith? Ex: prayer, meditation, consciously shifting your focus from obstacles to what you want, affirmation). Implement a daily practice now to strengthen your Faith.

26. Mind Threshold - Your inner critic has taken control. Ignore negative thoughts, and trust you are ready for greatness.

The mind threshold is a silent killer. Your inner critic masks itself in your logical thinking and uses practicality and reason to keep you from moving forward. If you notice yourself listening to these logical thoughts that keep you idling and not taking action, it's important to shine a spotlight on your inner critic and tell it to take a hike. Your inner critic is not your friend and can not be trusted. Stop listening to it, and listen to your Guidance instead. Only you can master your mind.

Start everyday with at least five minutes of prayer and meditation. If you find your logical mind acting as a weapon against you, stop what you are doing and take one minute to meditate. This simple practice will help you discern when your inner critic is running your mind.

27. No Compromise - God does not expect you to compromise yourself in order to live the life of your dreams.

When you co-create with God, compromising yourself and your heart's desire is not permitted. When you compromise yourself, you communicate to God that you don't believe you are worthy to receive heavenly abundance or that God is not capable of giving all your heart desires. Watering down your vision to fit in your current limited box of thinking is a compromise. Doing something out of your alignment and integrity to force your vision into fruition is a compromise. Saying yes to lesser desires that interfere with your greater desire is a compromise. Compromise feels disempowering and communicates doubt. Instead, learn how to make healthy sacrifices (which are empowering) and create win/wins.

What areas in your life, such as relationships or activities, are you compromising yourself? Choose one area where you feel compromised, and write down what a win/win experience would feel like. Are you willing to stand for a win/win?

28. Not your Dharma - You are using time and energy to fulfill someone else's purpose. Live your purpose instead.

It is better to do a poor job of your own life purpose than to do someone else's life purpose well. When you are not clear and aligned with your purpose, you may find yourself at the whims of someone else's agenda for your time and energy. It is one thing to consciously support another in their purpose, and another to collapse into their purpose because you have no direction of your own. Living another's dharma can create resentment for both parties, because the expectations were never aligned in the first place.

Where are you engaged in someone else's projects or ideas that don't fully align with you? Are you afraid to disappoint others by changing your mind? Are you forcing yourself to follow through misaligned agreements to protect your image? Are you willing to be responsible, have an honest conversation, and shift your direction?

29. Practical Action - What is one action can you take toward your vision? There's no time to waste, take action now!

There may be a hundred action steps you need to take before your goal manifests. Even if you don't know every action step required, take the practical steps you can right now. When co-creating with God, it is important to take practical action from a Be-Do-Have consciousness. Come into alignment with qualities of your soul (ex: power, trust, openness, abundance) that empower you to take action.

When you feel stress or anxiety while taking practical action, take a step back and tune into who you are being. Did you slip into feelings of attachment, doubt, or needing to be in control, while forgetting that God is your Source?

Write down a list of practical actions you know you need to take to bring your vision into fruition. Then write down the way you would love to feel when taking those actions. What is one action you can joyfully or courageously take right now?

30. Prayer - Connect with God through prayer, affirmation, and mantras. God is your heavenly business partner.

We live in a world with infinite distractions and demands on our attention. Before you begin the tasks of your day, sit quietly for at least five minutes with God. Fill your cup with God's heavenly love through prayers, affirmations, mantras, song, or any other way you celebrate God. Remember, you are co-creating your goals with God, and God is the best business partner to help you achieve your heart's desire. Allowing yourself time to pray every day (even if in the shower, before meals, or while driving a car) will help you stay on your center and manifest with greater ease.

31. Sacrifice - It's time to sacrifice your attachment or lesser desire that is interfering with your greater vision.

Unlike compromises, sacrifices feel empowering and are healthy to clear space for your vision. Let's say you desire two things, and one lesser desire is interfering with your greater desire. For example, your greater desire is to work on an exciting project and your lesser desire is to scroll absent-mindedly on social media for hours. You may currently enjoy spending your time dawdling on social-media, and using that time for your higher vision would be a healthy sacrifice.

Write a list of potential sacrifices you could make that will bring you closer to your goal. What activities fill your schedule that don't really matter? What sacrifice are you willing to make now?

32. Shadow Work - You are projecting unhealed parts of yourself onto others. Be responsible for what happens inside of you.

When we feel triggered by anything or anyone, we have an opportunity to use that person or thing as a mirror to heal unconscious wounds within ourselves. What bothers you in another reflects the part of you that you do not love or accept within yourself. Rejecting another is a reflection of your own self-rejection. The way to heal and integrate your shadow is to stop projecting your inner disturbance onto others, and learn to love all parts of yourself.

Prompt-

Four steps for shadow work:

1. You spot it, you got it. What you see in them lives inside you.
2. Can you accept that you, too, are what you don't like in the other?
3. Can you love this part of yourself?
4. What is the hidden gift of this part of you?

33. Sheep Pen - You were meant for something more than the decorated material-hell you are living in. Break free.

Sheep are those who trade their time and energy for the illusion of security even though their job makes them miserable. Sheep compete with each other and try to "keep up with the Joneses." Sheep have more faith in their own limiting intelligence and resources than they do in God. They believe if they keep searching the material world, they will one day find happiness. They decorate their hell with more and more things, desperately searching for fulfillment. Sheep are followers who do what they are told, follow social norms, and don't take risks that could jeopardize their image. They need immediate proof their actions will give them a return, and when they hit their thresholds, they easily give up or water down their goal to fit in their current box of thinking. Sheep may learn how to create a lot of money and even thrive in the material world, but they lack a sense of spiritual purpose or inner satisfaction.

What areas of your life are you showing up as a sheep? Are you in a job that drains you just to pay bills? Are you settling for relationships that stroke your ego and take a lot of effort to maintain? Where are you indulging in the material world to avoid pain?

34. The Gardner - People who gossip are your personal gardeners. Let them pull out the weeds in your garden of friends.

Sometimes jealous or confused people will gossip and distort the truth about you in an attempt to sabotage you. There is nothing you can do about these kinds of people except for ignoring them and letting them do their job. Consider these unconscious, manipulative people are your free gardeners, pulling out the weeds in your garden of friends. A true friend would never listen to gossip about you, and would even defend you in the presence of a gardener. A true friend would tell you about the gardener. Those who have it inside themselves to turn on you will easily listen to your gardener and make a decision to betray you. You don't need those people taking up space in your garden. They are weeds that suffocate the time, energy, sunlight, rain, and nutrients that are meant for your worthy friends who are your true flowers. Learn to appreciate the gardener. They are working for you for free and you benefit from their unconscious efforts to sabotage you.

Journal about a time in your life when someone spread gossip or lies about you and caused some so-called friends to turn their backs on you. What friends remained in your life and became stronger? What new relationships came into your life

35. The Shepherd - God calls you to be a leader. Surrender the illusion of security and walk a Spirit-led path.

The path of the Shepherd is spiritually rewarding and not easy. A Shepherd must demonstrate Faith through their actions, trusting God is their Source, while having no proof anything will work out in their favor. God has called you to walk the path of the Shepherd, which means you must give up attachment to the material world as your source of security and fleeting peace. Sheep chase their happiness in the insatiable material world, kind of like decorating hell in a desperate attempt to feel more comfortable. The Shepherd turns within themselves to perpetually experience God's unconditional love, peace, and joy regardless of what is happening in the material world. The Shepherd has access to Heaven in the midst of hell. The Shepherd is free.

What areas in your life are you exchanging your time and energy in order to feel secure or briefly happy? If you trusted God completely, and knew you would be provided for at every step of co-creating your Heaven on Earth, what would you be doing? Who would be with you? What impact would you want to make on our planet?

36. Tithe - Contribute your money, time, and skills to where you feel spiritually fed. What you give comes back tenfold.

Tithing is a spiritual wand that invokes the power of faith and gratitude in God, thus opening you up to more Heavenly abundance. To tithe means to give ten percent of your money (you are also encouraged to tithe your time, talents, and skills) to the place where you feel spiritually fed. When you tithe, you are acknowledging that God is your Source, and your focus stays on God as the only provider of your abundance. When we give abundantly, we receive abundantly.

Try it! For at least one week, take ten percent of your income and give it to the person, place, or organization that spiritually feeds you. This may be a church, spiritual center, author of a book that inspired you, friend who helped you shift back into alignment, or event that spiritually nourished you.

37. Unwavering Faith - Your faith is your only power! The stronger your faith, the quicker your good will come to you.

Doubt and Faith are both powerful tools for manifestation if we use them properly. It's important to doubt limiting beliefs or obstacles that come between you and your heart's desire. If you have faith in obstacles, they usually manifest. Having unwavering Faith in God is the power you need to bring forth your vision. No matter what you believe in, the stronger your faith, the quicker the manifestation.

Write a list of beliefs you want to doubt and then a list of beliefs you want to develop faith in. For example, "I don't have time or money to manifest my vision," belongs on your doubt list. Something like, "There is more than enough money and resources for myself and everyone else to live happy, harmonious lives" could be on your faith list. Put a star by the beliefs that would support you the most to bring your goal into fruition.

38. Vacuum Effect - You broke through your threshold and the Heavens pour down upon you. Open to receive!

Congratulations on breaking through your threshold! You have pierced the veil of limitation, and are entering the vacuum effect where the right resources, people, and abundance come to you. In the vacuum effect, you are no longer seeking what you want because what you want is now seeking you. Open yourself to receive all the goodness coming your way!

Do not be shy when mind-blowing gifts and opportunities are given freely to you. RECEIVE. RECEIVE. RECEIVE.

39. Your Purpose - Do what brings you joy, and the prosperity will follow. Your purpose in life is meant to be fun!

Your purpose in life is meant to be fun. When you are aligned with your highest purpose, you feel effortless joy and operate at your highest capacity. When your energy field is vibrating, you attract abundance on all levels (health, wealth, enriching relationships). Your purpose may or may not be a job or career, and can still bring you money and fulfillment the way an empty job or career can not. Your purpose is something you already do and have been doing in one way or another most of your life. Your purpose may take on different shapes and creative forms, and the core essence is always the same. For example, do you love to cook for others? Do you love to bring people together? Do you love to organize spaces or events? Do you love to teach or empower others? Discover your core purpose and live it to the fullest.

Imagine having infinite money in the bank with excellent health and thriving relationships...what would you do with your time and energy in a way that would joyfully contribute to humanity? What legacy would you want to be remembered for?
